The towing and clamping contract with APCOA was renewed on the 1st January 2009. The contract period is three years.

The tender price for the previous tender (prior to 1st January 2009), was approximately €1.3 million per year. The new contract had adjustments to towing periods, and as a result of the competitive tendering system, the cost in 2009 was €1,000,900.

Cork City Council has three available means of parking enforcement:

- Tow-away
- Clamping
- Fixed charge penalty notices (FCPN's or parking fines)

These enforcement means can be used for any of the parking offences listed in the Cork City Parking Bye-Laws and the National Parking Regulations. The actual use of any enforcement mechanism is determined by policy, e.g. at present it is Cork City Council's policy not to tow-away vehicles for disc parking offences.

In response to the following question submitted by Comhairleoir D. Cahill, a written reply was circulated as outlined below:-

With regard to recent recommendations by the World renowned “Lonely Planet Guide”, highlighting Cork City, the Manager has in the past stated that a specific body will not be steering the marketing/branding of Cork City for 2010 and that Fáilte Ireland have been given the task of exploiting our city’s award. Is there at least a written plan of marketing by Fáilte Ireland in this regard and if so can the Members view it? If no plan is written, would the Manager request Fáilte Ireland to give a presentation to Council outlining their strategy. 2010 will pass quickly and our city’s chance to capitalize will pass also.

The organisation charged with promoting the tourism industry overseas is Tourism Ireland. In a letter to the Lord Mayor some time back Tourism Ireland confirmed that they were including the Lonely Planet coverage in their marketing and promotions.

Fáilte Ireland have also confirmed that they are also, in their promotional material, using the Lonely Planet accolade.

I will seek up-to-date details from Tourism Ireland and Fáilte Ireland.
